DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Applicant's arguments filed 11/19/2003 regarding Arai (EP Application #0644030A2) in view of Louwagie et al. (US Pat. #5,899,962) have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The rejection of claims 17-41 has been sustained. The sole issue of this case is whether the applicant is the first to invent a control architecture with a processor for generating control signals for controlling an analog device such as a hydraulic manifold or actuator. However, such invention is clearly disclosed in Louwagie et al. The question is then it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the control processor of Arai with so called a control architecture having local microprocessors of Louwagie et al. to generate control signals for an analog device such as a hydraulic manifold or actuator. The obvious answer is yes.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.

2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
  3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
  4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.
3. Claims 17-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Arai (EP Application #0644030A2) in view of Louwagie et al. (US Pat. #5,899,962).

The sole difference between claims 17-41 and Arai is a system control processor and microcontroller disposed adjacent the manifold or the valves. The applicant argues that such arrangements allow the manifold and valves to be controlled locally to minimize wiring and to prevent processing bottlenecks in the system controller. The applicant further argues that the manifold and valves are located in areas of high thermal and vibration stresses, it would not have been obvious to locate the microcontroller in such a harsh environment. However, Louwagie et al. disclose a transmitter including electronics module having a microcontroller and sensor module having a microcontroller disposed adjacent the manifold or valves so that sensor measurements from remote location are immediately converted into an electrical signal (see col. 1, lines 55-65; col.2, lines 30-35; col.4, lines 40-45; col.6, lines 5-15; col. 12, lines 23-30). The electrical signal can be compensated at the remote location whereby the signal provided to the transmitter has a high level of accuracy. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to modify the control processor of Arai with the transmitter having dual microprocessors of Louwagie et al. to minimize wiring and to prevent processing bottlenecks in the system controller.

1. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
